TOKYO : the capital of Japan ; station occupied, 1869 ;
laborers-- . . . Miss Sarah C. Smith . . . .

p. 151

Miss Sarah C. Smith removed during the year from Hakodati [sic] to Sapporo, where with the consent of the mission, she has accepted a position in a Government school, where she spends two or three hours each day. This gives her standing with the people and leaves her free to devote part of the day to the instruction of a class of girls in her own house and to engage in other kinds of mission work.
