

This year the school puts out its first graduates. Miss Kawasaki and Miss Akagi are graduated in June and in September take their place in the school as teachers, supplying the places of the two from Tokio [sic]. From this time the work becomes easier, on account of the sympathy of the teachers for the school in which they have been educated. But this is the year before the “ Treaty Revision” and war with China and there is great depression and every thing foreign is at a discount. The foreign professors have all left the Agricultural College which Pres. Clark founded some twenty years earlier. We are told that the government will not give us another lease of the school buildings rent free; and objections are made to another foreign teacher being associated with the school. Mr. Iwanaga succe[eds] Mr. Sugita.
